Chin Chin, Mayor of Chinatown, to Return in June.

Chin Chin, mayor of Salt Lake's Chinatown, has written to his friend Lou Hing, of 53 Plum Alley, that he will probably return to Salt Lake about the first of June. Chin went to his native country to get his children who went there with his wife about ; year ago. Chin's wife died last De year ago. Chin's while died last De-cember and he immediately left for the flowery kingdom. It will be a bif of surprising news to Chin's friends here to learn that he is married again and will make an effort to bring his new bride to Salt Lake when he re-turns.

During Chin's absence, the agent who has control of the property which has been occupied by Chin for the last twelve years, raised the rent $20, and as Chin was not here to attend to the matter, the place has been leased to another Chinaman, an avowed enemy of Chin's. Unless something can be done for him, Chin is likely to find himself without a home when he re-turns to Pium Alley.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL. Last night's musicale in the parlors of the Commercial club, was one of the most enjoyable functions yet given under the auspices of this popular institu-tion. The house was crowded, so that a raid had to be made by the ushers on adjoining offices and apartments for chairs, and not only were the pariors filled with interested listeners, but the ladies' dining room and part of the large dining room beyond had to be thrown open. It was largely a full dress affair, and there was a rich display of handsome gowns by the ladies, including a fine array of Easter hats. One lady was heard to remark as she coked in the d s ction of another richly attired lady near by, "That dress could not have cost less than $150."

The apartments were decorated with plants and flowers, and the piano was set about the middle of the house. Christensen's orchestra furnished the preliminary music, and the audience waited, expecting to hear one of Secy. Fisher Harris' inimitable introductory addresses, and a few words of welcome that would put them in special good humor for the evening. But Mr. Harris did not come until later and presently H. L. A.
